I am looking for some new people to help with this year's appeal. If anyone could help, please let me know. It involves approximately 2-3 hours doing a house- to- house collection during the 2 weeks before Remembrance Sunday.

SIBFORD LUNCH CLUB

The success of our weekly lunches for the senior members of our community has seen a rapid increase in numbers this year. Consequently, we are in need of more volunteers to help run our Wednesday Lunches.

Can you give us three hours on a Wednesday lunch time, usually about once a month, to help set up and serve the provided food, chat and generally socialise with our members? If you have a car, perhaps transport one of our less mobile members to and from Sibford Village Hall.

The Lunch Club was started 32 years ago and provides a weekly social environment for over 30 of our senior citizens.

HARRY BERKS

Harry (24), our youngest, went to Sibford School and then Bristol University where he got a First class honours Master degree in Palaeontology and Evolution. He has since been trying to get a PhD in the subject and working on various projects and papers. One of the papers he is co-author of has just been published in Science magazine and the press release below from Bristol Uni explains it and some of Harry's involvement.

He has no idea I'm contacting you and will probably curse me, but I thought it was interesting.

James Bond revisited by Ian Sharp, Village Hall May 29th 2024

The Village was treated to a unique evening courtesy of Ian Sharp, Director of the James Bond film Goldeneye. We saw the film with Pierce Brosnan and then were entertained to a wonderful insight into the tank chase filming in St Petersburg and another important stunt in this film hanging off a dam. Nowhere in the country could this have happened other than in Sibford. It was hugely entertaining and to get the inside track of some of these amazing cinematographic stunts was simply wonderful. Needless to say the Village Hall was packed and we all had a wonderful evening for which we thank Ian Sharp very much indeed.

NATURE NOTES

I just sat down to write these notes and I was intending to start by commenting on the pleasing number of dragonflies and damselflies seen around the garden when I was called to help rescue an Emperor Dragonfly that had got into the house. These large impressive dragonflies are attracted by garden ponds where they will breed and the adults catch and eat other insects on the wing.

The warmer days have finally brought out a few more butterflies but I don't think I have seen any Small Tortoiseshells this year. The other insect that seems to have only been present in tiny numbers are wasps. Although this may be good news if you are having a picnic or a drink in the garden wasps are important pollinators and predators of many pest species. This lack of wasps has been noted nationally and could be due to the weather earlier in the year.

In dry weather it is a good idea to provide garden birds with a source of water for drinking and bathing. Although Blackbirds seem to prefer a shallow area of the pond the various species of tit and nuthatches all seem to prefer a tiny little birdbath that I was given a few years ago. It needs to be frequently topped up.

I have had increasing numbers of reports of Muntjac and Roe deer coming into gardens around the villages. They can do a lot of damage to garden plants in a short time.

There are 54 species of Pug moth found in the UK. Some are extremely rare and many are quite challenging to identify. I had recorded 26 different species in Sibford over the years and thought it unlikely to add any more and then in July on 3 successive nights I caught 3 new species. Experts confirmed my identification based on photographs. The most surprising was a Marsh Pug only recorded twice previously in Oxfordshire in 1972 and 1986.

Please send any contributions for the next Nature Notes to ajnewbold88@gmail.com.

Quick reminder on Hirers' responsibilities: Considering the thefts at the hall which included three bags of compost as well as the plants, can we please emphasise how important it is to watch over our village facilities. FILM NIGHTS

The film on Wednesday September 25th is 1976.

1976 is a Spanish-language political thriller film directed by Manuela Martelli about a wealthy woman who becomes involved in Chile's anti-Pinochet resistance in 1976. The film is set in the winter of 1976, three years after Augusto Pinochet's military coup and dictatorship in Chile.

The film follows Carmen (Aline Kuppenheim), a middle-aged woman who lives a sheltered life with her doctor husband. When the local priest asks Carmen to help care for a wounded young man who is part of the resistance, Carmen begins to realise the dangers of living in a country where people who disagree with the leaders face consequences. Carmen's involvement in the resistance also explores her spiritual development and the Roman Catholic Church's attempts to address human rights abuses.

Some reviews of 1976 have praised the film's central performance by Kuppenheim and Martelli's debut as a director. Others have described the film as a 'compelling drama of privilege and dissent', a 'nerve-jangling noir', and a chilling picture of a dictatorship.

Doors open at 7. Film starts at 7.30

Admission £3 pp. Refreshments available.

SIBFORD LUNCH CLUB

In the early 1990's Oxfordshire Social Services recognised that the rising number of elderly people living in the rural villages of North Oxfordshire had little or no support compared to their contemporaries living in the major towns where Day Centres provided support serving meals and social contact. At the same time some of the senior pupils at Sibford School were studying vocational courses preparing for careers in vocational work. These courses included catering, business, horticulture and health and care. Each of these courses had a practical requirement and the Health and Care course was led by the then Head of Sixth Form, Gill Manthorpe who lived with her family in the Fielding Boarding House. Judith Weeks, who lived in the Gower and worked for Social Services, was also a parent with a child at Sibford School who was taking the Health and Care Course. A connection was made. Sibford School could provide a safe environment for elderly people who lived in the rural villages around Sibford and who would benefit from the much-needed social contact. Fielding Day Centre was born in April 1992.

Each Wednesday the school minibus, driven by Gill provided transport, Sibford School provided meals and the pupils prepared the friendly dining room. With the additional help of village volunteers, the elderly of our community soon enjoyed a full day programme of games, quizzes, coffee, lunch and tea plus the chance to meet up and chat together. The Sixth form pupils had a first-hand opportunity to understand and observe the needs of the elderly villagers.

The Day Centre in Sibford was one of the first set up in the rural communities of north Oxfordshire and was later funded by Oxfordshire County Council with a full-time organiser. Members had to be recommended by Social Services, the local surgery and the health Service.

In 2017, OCC ceased funding for transport and staff and what was a full day changed into a lunch club, meeting in the Sibford village hall with the continued support of Sibford School. With no OCC restrictions, membership was now open to villagers over 65 and members continue to value the opportunity to meet and enjoy a chat and lunch together every Wednesday.

New members are welcome - if you are interested, please contact Keith Hicks, Tel. 780259 or keith@hicks-sibford.co.uk for further information.

SUNEDAY SMALLHOLDING

I had planned on cutting back some sections of the smallholding, particularly those that had legs! 'Concentrate on the veg' I had told myself.

I can spend all day everyday working here and yet there is always another job to do...and then grandchildren came along...more legs...and more reason to keep everything ticking over.

I am determined to give my two Little Wonders an understanding of the difference between want and need, work and reward.

So much so that this year I have decided to rear my own Christmas turkey. In July I went to Norfolk and returned with 21 black and bronze turkey chicks. Many years ago Tony and I used to rear 100 turkeys and some people reading this may well have bought one. I know what I'm taking on. They're quite small now and are not eating much, quite cute and make a sweet tweeting noise as bedtime approaches and they can all cuddle up together. The change happens almost imperceptibly until towards the beginning of December you realise they're not cute at all and are eating their own weight in feed everyday and the daunting prospect of killing, plucking and dressing becomes overwhelming.

I will be seeking Christmas tables for these birds and any that I haven't sold will come with me to Cirencester Livestock Market...where incidentally I recently purchased a young pedigree Oxford Sandy and Black boar named Jimmy...more legs!!!!

HORTI SOCIETY

Horti entry September

After a summer of garden visits and culminating with The Summer Show on August 24, The Horticulture Society quietly subsides into the tranquility of September, along with the season, and pauses for a moment before we continue with our lecture programme in October when Diane Clement is coming to talk to us on 'Alpines in the wild and in cultivation' on Wednesday October 9. Usual arrangements; 7.00 at the village hall for refreshments for a 7.30 start. Members free, non-members, always welcome, £3.00

We look forward to seeing you all there

In Your Garden - September

It should start to get cooler in September, but it has been very unsettled this year. We have had floods in spring, and suddenly scorching days reaching record degrees of heat, so what should we expect in Autumn this year? Damned if I know, but writing this in the middle of August I can see that the berries in the hedges are starting to colour up, the blackberries look almost ripe, so we had better get on with normal jobs, and wait to see what happens!

1. Colour in your garden in autumn is produced by autumn flowering bulbs. Cyclamen hederifolium starts flowering soon, and likes to grow in dryish soil, and under trees. Also well worth planting are Nerines. They don't necessarily need planting against a south wall, as in the old custom, but as long as they get full sun in well drained soil, they will be happy. My favourite is colchicums, which flower like huge crocus, in pink or white. The only trouble about them is the annoying foliage that follows on, and should be kept there to feed the bulbs for next year. And glorious dahlias go on lighting up the borders until the first frost.
2. Alpine plants, like saxifrage, primulas and campanulas can all be divided up for more plants now.
3. As the seedheads develop on your favourite flowers, collect the seedheads, and put them to dry out on a tray somewhere warm, and when they have turned brown and dry, put them away in an envelope, and don't forget to label them.
4. As your lettuce and tomato plants start to come to an end, you can sow Lambs lettuce and Rocket seeds to have for your salads. plant the seeds in a cold frame or greenhouse. They grow very quickly.

In Your Garden - September

5. You can take cuttings of semi-ripe salvias, verbenas and fuschias now, so that you can replace any that suffer in the winter, or give them away to friends.

6 Perennials, such as phlox and asters which have finished flowering, can be split up into smaller clumps. The ground is too hard to dig them out at the moment, but it will soften up with lots of rain. You can replant the outside rootings, and get rid of the tired old bit in the centre.

7. Time to order up your bulbs for spring, and to buy prepared hyacinth bulbs to plant this month so that they flower for Christmas. DO your planting at the end of September, but don't plant tulips until November.

8. As the weather cools down you can start moving tender plants into the greenhouse, or porch, but I hardly dare type this, because you will all say OH NO! But you must take all the plants out of the greenhouse and give it a jolly good clean first. Sorry.

9. It's Harvest time, so enjoy your apples, pears, grapes and late raspberries. Freeze them, or store them, or pass them on to friends. My favourite is Apple Strudel, and you can freeze loads of those, so that you have puddings to serve when anyone turns up for lunch

10. If trees grow over your pond, it helps to cover it with netting, and Oh! I forgot to say that your climbing roses need cutting back. You know how to do it, be fairly ruthless, and make the new long shoots grow sideways by tying them in horizontally.

SIBFORD FERRIS PARISH COUNCIL

Parking in Private Roads

Concerns were raised at the last Parish Council (PC) meeting about parking in private roads, in particular in Manning's Close. Although we understand that parking can be difficult in villages such as ours, we would appreciate it if villagers and their visitors could park considerately and not in private roads as this can block access for the residents. Vehicles should also not be parked on the textured area on the corner at the end of Hawk's Lane (next to The Manor) as this area has been put in place to allow buses and other large vehicles to get around the corner.

Cotswold Close Play Area

The upgrade to the Cotswold Close Play Area is now scheduled to take place in October.

For any Parish Council related issues the Parish Clerk can be contacted on sfpc@thesibfords.org.uk

HOOK NORTON HARRIERS

Hook Norton Harriers recently enjoyed a volunteer take over at Chipping Norton School parkrun. For those of you who are unfamiliar with parkrun it describes itself as 'a free, fun, and friendly weekly 5k community event. Walk, jog, run, volunteer or spectate – it's up to you!' Our local is Chipping Norton School which takes place (as the name suggests) at the secondary school in Chipping Norton. Parkrun is actually a really enjoyable Saturday morning activity and is totally inclusive of all abilities... you will NEVER be the last runner or walker as one of the volunteer roles is 'tail walker' to ensure that all participants finish in front of them. The success of the event relies on volunteers and members of the Hook Norton Harriers came together to support their local parkrun by filling the roster on a particularly rainy July morning! Skin is waterproof ... you will often hear Harriers say!

If you are interested in joining us for a social run or would like to find out more about our races, please contact our club chairman, Richard Hart. Richard would love to have an informal chat with you about our club. Please email him on info@hooknortonharriers.org.uk or give him a call on 07728 892177.

DID YOU KNOW?

Norman Manors in the Sibfords

After the Norman invasion in 1066 and following his coronation, King William divided vast areas of land between the Knights of Normandy who had brought about the defeat of the English at the Battle of Hastings. King William proclaimed all England to be his and his rewards to his knights were grants, in the form of Lordships to Manorial estates. The land and the powers of the Lords of each of the Manors were held on condition that all services, including military service, were rendered to the King.

Hugh de Grantmesnil, who came from Lisieux in Normandy was one of King William's most trusted knights and had master-minded the invasion in 1066. He was well rewarded, made Earl of Leicester and granted 100 English Manors in a number of counties including Oxfordshire. His Manor in Sibford Gower comprised 10 hides. The definition of a hide has been disputed by many medieval historians but most now agree that it was not a unit of area but one of value. The lands under Grantmesnil's grant were managed by a demesne tenant called Aba. The grant comprised "Land for 8 ploughs." The income from land under two of those ploughs was in demesne and payable in tithes to the Crown via the Lord of the Manor. There were a further 'four acres of meadow and a mill.' A second Domesday Manor in Sibford Gower and Burdrop, also assessed at 10 hides, was granted to William Fitz Corbucion and held as one knight's fee. In 1086 the demesne tenant was Ralph and the income from one of the 7 ploughs was due to the Lord of the Manor. There was also 'a mill and four acres of meadow plus pasture 7 furlongs in length and breadth.' In the 12th century the fee was held by the Norman family of Goher, from which it is thought the Gower took its name. During the 13th century the manor descended in the line of the Earls of Warwick.

The actual areas of these two Manors remain unknown although the dovecote which remains in a garden in Main Street may have been part of the Grantmesnil Manor.

VILLAGE PEOPLE

This month, we have Colin Lamb

Why Sibford?

I was born and brought up at Sibford Grounds Farm, and my family have lived in the village for generations, so when my wife, Mavis and I had the chance to move to my parents bungalow after their death, we took the opportunity without hesitation.

Earliest memory of Sibford

My earliest memories of the village are of going to play at my friend, Michael Doolan's house in Cotswold Close and the great kindness shown me by his mother, who was a lovely lady.

Surprising things about yourself

I have rowed the length of Lake Windermere on three occasions in charity events to raise money for the National Grocer's Benevolent Fund!

Best thing about Sibford and what would you like to change

Walking the network of paths and lanes in and around the villages through beautiful countryside is something I enjoy greatly, but I would like dog walkers to be aware that some people are not comfortable around dogs, so please keep them under close control when encountering other people.

What do you do?

I am now retired from work as an electronics engineer. My last job was providing technical support and training to a worldwide customer base of engineers using sophisticated test equipment manufactured by my employers.

How long have you lived here?

I moved back to Sibford with Mavis almost five years ago.

Hobbies

My main interest is photography and being an active member of four different societies or groups takes up much of my time these days.

What really gets you going?

I really enjoy visiting nature reserves, with the opportunities it gives me for photography. We recently visited Ramsey Island, an RSPB reserve off St. David's Head and had a wonderful day, spotting birds, grey seals, red deer and other wildlife, as well as having a boat trip and a lovely walk in glorious weather. Fantastic!

From the Roof of The World

2024 is an auspicious year for the people of Sibford, as it marks the return to our village after 10 years of the Tibetan Tashi Lhunpo Monks who live in exile in their monastery in India. Once again they will be sharing their unique culture, including the creation and ritual destruction of a sand mandala, and interactive workshops. The Saturday evening performance of masked dancers and sacred chants features ancient musical instruments and offers an opportunity to experience a mysterious and endangered culture.

There will be another anniversary celebration at this event. Exactly 30 years after the filming of the renowned documentary Escape from Tibet, the producers and film crew will be reunited with the two brothers, now British citizens, whose dangerous journey from the Roof of the World is told in the film. Using film clips and photographs, they will tell the story of how the film was made.

Some of the events are free and do not need to be booked in advance, but tickets will be needed for these events:

- Saturday morning Workshop: £5 per person
- Saturday afternoon Workshop: £5 per person
- 'Escape from Tibet' 30 Years On presentation and Evening Performance: one ticket to cover both events: Adult £16, School-age child £5
- Curry supper (cost to be determined)

Please book and pay for your tickets online via thesibfords.uk/tlm if you can, otherwise contact Diana Hughes on 01295 788 214 or at dianahughesonline@gmail.com

For more information about the Tashi Lhunpo monks and their weekend in Sibford, visit thesibfords.uk/tlm

The net proceeds of the weekend will help support the monks, young and old, who study and live in Tashi Lhunpo, benefitting the whole community.

THE SIBFORD SWIFTS

THE SIBFORD SWIFTS

The photo captures the moment at about 10am on Sunday 28th July when the last chick fledged from our Mannings Close colony. Taking to the air for the first time, this swift will spend the next two or three years entirely in the air drinking, eating, preening and sleeping on the wing before possibly returning to us to find a mate and breed for the first time.

Compared to the previous two years, when 10 or 11 chicks fledged, this year has been disappointing, with just 5 fledgings. Each of our four boxes with a camera has its own unusual story to tell, often involving a pesky kestrel.

In box#1 the first swift to arrive, almost certainly returning from last year, roosted consistently, but its mate never showed up and apart from a few one night stands it did not manage to settle down with another. No offspring there.

I related in the July Scene the kerfuffle in box #4 when, after a fight with an intruder, two of the three eggs were discarded and a single fresh one laid. This resulted in two eggs hatching an unusual 4 days apart, so the two chicks differed considerably in size and their ability to get a share of the food. And then in late June one of the parents was taken by the kestrel. Although the remaining parent did seem to be feeding both chicks successfully, 3 weeks later the smaller chick took it upon itself to simply fall out of the entrance very early in the morning, to be predated by perhaps a crow or the kestrel. We found a few feathers on the ground below. Its larger sibling, the colony's oldest chick, appeared to fledge successfully a few days later.

In early July one of the parents disappeared from box #2, presumably taken by the kestrel, although we have no evidence of that. Since the widowed parent would have no chance of successfully raising three chicks, we took the two biggest ones to Oxfordshire Wildlife Rescue in Blewbury, where they know how to tackle the difficult and skilled task of hand-rearing swiftlets. A week later the remaining chick, routinely observing the world from the box entrance, was snatched out by the kestrel.

Box #3 was a model of swift breeding, all three eggs hatching within a day of each other so that the chicks all grew together at the same rate. But then the kestrel struck again, taking one of the chicks in the same way as for #2. Its two siblings fledged successfully a week later.

In our new "swift hotel", just round the corner from the main colony, we thought we had a breeding pair – until the kestrel took one of them as it entered its box. However, we did see a pair entering the box at the end of July, so perhaps they will return to breed next year.

Also on the bright side, several of our neighbours have put up nest boxes and we hear that both the church and Sibford School will be doing so shortly.

You can read more about all the drama, some illustrated with video footage, on the village website at thesibfords.uk/about/swifts/swifts-2024

Please email me at swifts@thesibfords.uk if you have queries about boxes, calls, or indeed anything swiftian and I'll do my best to help. We'll be thinking about how we can protect the colony from so much predation next year.

A strange survival from the Civil Wars

Oswyn Murray

David Soden has shown me a piece of wood six foot long, with a painted inscription, gold lettering on grey-blue. He believes it came from the yard of the Poulton family business who were long active in the building trade in the Sibfords. The lettering is in rough seventeenth century script, upper and lower case, and reads:

Qui rebellaverit ori tuo morietur ANN (in capitals, for 'anno', presumably it continues with a year date)

[Whosoever rebels against your words, shall be killed ANN]

This is taken from the Latin Vulgate version of Joshua 1.18, a famous passage in the Bible, where after the death of Moses Joshua tells the Israelites to cross the Jordan into the Promised Land and seize it from the poor Palestinians (very topical given Netanyahu's policy in Gaza). The first four words are quoted from an early Vulgate version by Trebellius (1569): the word 'rebellaverit' instead of the later 'contradixerit' proves that the inscription is genuinely seventeenth century. I have consulted the two most eminent historians on 16th-17th century religious history in Oxford and Cambridge but they know of no parallels for this use of such a rather bloodthirsty biblical text.

The secret Catholic church in Brailes was repanelled in the eighteenth century: Is this inscription what remains of the earlier decoration, preserved because it was inscribed and dated? Is the lost date related to the battle of Edgehill, fought in 1642 just down the road? The survival of the wooden text can plausibly be explained if the Poulton family business were employed in the eighteenth century renovation; they would have transported the old panelling to their Sibford base, and perhaps this section survived because it was lettered.

Maybe someone can come up with a better explanation!

SIBFORD PHOTOGRAPHY CLUB

On 27th August, we had an in depth discussion about photographing animals, both pets and wild animals. This covered picking the environment for a shoot, choice of lens and camera settings for static poses and action shots. We then enjoyed members' images on the topic of "Agriculture" encompassing animals, crops and machinery.

Sibford Photography Club is a friendly, informal group with a shared interest in photography. Activities include instructive presentations and regular photo topics with the resulting images presented and discussed at meetings (face to face or virtual). In addition to our regular meetings, we also arrange outdoor photoshoots at local stately homes, gardens, nature reserves and other places of interest.

We would like to welcome more members to the club, so if you are interested in joining, please contact Colin Lamb at colinlamb.cl@gmail.com or phone 01295 780357. We generally meet on the last Tuesday of each month at 7:30 pm in the small hall at the Village

SIBFORDS HISTORY SOCIETY

On 20th June Dr Gillian White, our ever popular guest speaker, gave us in her inimitably stylish way, a talk on 'The Battle of Crécy, 1346'. She outlined the history of the Battle, which resulted in victory for the English against the French, in which the longbow proved to be more effective than the Genoese crossbow, which was affected by the rain. The brutality of medieval warfare was really brought home to us, and it is agonising to think that besieging and brutal killings are still part of our world today. Thank you to Gillian, who warned us that this was going to be her most "serious" talk.

Some of you who heard Bill King's talk on 'Dad's Underground Army' may be keen to visit a special 1940's event at Coleshill, which takes place over the weekend of 12th and 13th October. There will be displays about the Auxiliary Units and the replica operational base will be open. Bill and his wife Flora will be there. Please let us know if you are interested.

By the time you read this we will have had our trip to Hardwick Hall and we will be looking forward to Alastair Lack's talk on 'CS Lewis and JRR Tolkien' on September 19th. Doors open at the Village Hall at 7.15pm, and the talk starts at 7.30pm. Visitors £5. Light refreshments served after the talk.

NEIGHBOURHOOD WATCH

You will probably recognise a few of these scams, but they keep coming.

1. Scam emails impersonating Amazon. Scammers claim that your Amazon Prime membership is set to renew but your payment method is no longer valid. You get directed to a phishing website wanting your personal and financial details. Don't click on the link, send the email to:

reportascam@amazon.com

2. Warning from First Direct. If you receive an unexpected text message from your bank about your 'digital wallet' (this stores virtual versions of your debit and credit cards on your phone). Fraudsters pretend to be from your bank saying there has been a problem with the wallet, and please send your personal details via a link etc, etc. Forward suspicious messages to 7726.

3. Consumer website Which? warns of emails impersonating HM Revenue & Customs. Emails claim you are eligible for a tax rebate and must complete an online form immediately to receive it. The link leads to a malicious website etc. Once the crooks have these details they can register for loans and credit cards in your name. Do not click on the link - forward it to 'report@phishing.gov.uk.'

4. Beware emails purporting to come from Lloyds Bank which warn of an important security update. You are invited to complete an 'account verification process', and the rest is the same as 3. above, including forwarding the link.

5. Action Fraud are warning of scam emails impersonating NatWest. Crooks state that the contact number attached to your bank account has been updated and the change will take place in 24 hours. You are invited to click onto a link etc. Please respond as at 3. above.

6. Finally, fake QR codes are again being stuck on council owned parking machines, currently on meters in Llandudno and Colwyn Bay, north Wales. These are both attractive holiday destinations, so be alert.
